NEWS NOTES AND COMMENT

Last Saturday the Sebring ball team came here in autos and were beaten 5 to 2 by our club. Roosters fight better on their own dung-hill.

Last week Noah Fry of Rose township had a team of horses valued at $400 killed by lightning.

Our village is well represented at Chautauqua, Mt. Clemens and other summer resorts.

They say that everybody in Carrollton is a booster, even if they have to say so. David said in his haste that "all men are liars" and it is not known that he took it back when cooled down.

John Holger of Wapakoneta has completed his work inspecting the school and township clerk's books and finds everything O. K. The Free Press says of him: "Mr. Holger is one of the most gentlemanly inspectors that ever visited this county. He looks like a republican, but talks like a democrat."

The Chronicle print shop of this place will soon install a folding machine.

Ten-year-old boys are doing men's work in the harvest fields, driving teams and other light work while the "old man" does the lifting.

Is Gil Taylor still alive? No mention of him appears in print, and I imagine that he might have moved away unnoticed.

An appendicitis society is being talked of in this community. Enough operations have been performed to form a union.

Almost everybody seems able to afford a Ford these days.

Every well regulated farm should have a few sheep, to eat the briars and elder stalks, if not for the wool and mutton.

Many farmers hereabouts are buying goods from city department stores and mail order houses. This is stirring local merchants to advertise in the home papers.

The apple and peach crop in Carrollton is going to be immense, and this means much elder and possibly a good supply of peach brandy. However, there is no distillery here.

I enjoyed my first mess of home-grown beans and new potatoes, Friday.

Carrollton's factories cut a large melon last Saturday by paying $20,000 to their employees.

Last week I exchanged my palamas for Palm Beach B. V. D.'s and am now ready for the harvest weather. Wheat and hay harvest are here, but laborers are scarce. Farmers are afraid to allow their hands to come to town for fear that some other farmer will offer them higher wages. Oats have best promises more than an average yield, some farmers expect 50 bushels per acre. These same "hayseeds" thought the late seeding would be a failure.

Corn is in tassel, and I am counting the days until the first roasting ears will appear. Then I would like to see Frank Stouffer's family get away with a dishpan full of them smeared over with (f. c. b.) fresh country butter, the initials of the K. of P.

Thousands of pounds of wool were brought to town Saturday. This is the leading farm industry in Carroll county.

Running for office is a joke, rather than a sprinter's occupation. Cards and printed circulars have blanketed this county until there is scarcely a room for vegetation, if not blown away.

Teams working for the high power electric line from Wheeling to Canton have moved to Malvern. A special car with 70 negroes from North Carolina arrived here Monday and are camping just east of here.

The Wheeling & Lake Erie railroad is about to be absorbed by the Erie and an inspecting tour of the former was made last week.

Remember that the big primaries come the 8th of August, when choice will be made for all state and county candidates to be voted for in November.

The Presbyterian church was well filled Sunday night, when Mrs. Francis Ensign Fuller of Lake county, vice president of the Ohio W. T. U., lectured upon temperance. This is a dry town, and of course everybody is theoretically in favor of "vulgarizing the rum power."

Several cases of paralysis among grown persons are reported in this village, and I was sorry to read in the Dispatch that Mr. Joseph Tourdot was similarly afflicted.

There is a growing dissatisfaction as to the superintendence of schools in this county; whether it comes from the man, the district superintendents or the system. At all events the schools are not doing so well as they should.
